State Insurance Department Denies Making Any Fire Insurance Rates

Insurance Companies Alone Are Responsible For Increasing Rates For Bellefonte And Other Centre County Towns.

CAN'T "PASS THE BUCK"

The fire insurance companies, and not the State Insurance Department at Harrisburg, are responsible for the new and greatly increased insurance rates for Bellefonte and other towns in Centre County.

State Insurance Commissioner Samuel W. McCulloch, in a letter to "The Republican," most effectually blocks any effort upon the part of the insurance companies to "pass the buck" to him. Such an effort was made last week when the fact that rates had been increased first became known.

Some of the local fire insurance agents were authority for the statement that their companies had nothing to do with making the new rates, and that the increases had not only been made, but ordered enforced, by the State Insurance Department.

Letters from insurance companies to local agents were so phrased as to convey the impression that responsibility in the matter properly rested upon the State Insurance Department, and not upon the companies. Local agents accepted this as true and, acting in good faith, so informed policy holders who indignantly protested against the increases.

"The Republican," not being convinced that the State Insurance Department had power to make rates, accordingly addressed the following letter of inquiry to the State Insurance Commissioner:

Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 29, 1925.

State Insurance Commissioner,
Harrisburg, Pa.

Dear Sir:—

A revision of fire insurance rates for Bellefonte and other towns in Centre County is now being made. On properties in the business section of Bellefonte the revisions are principally upward.

Local insurance agents have informed this newspaper that the new rates have not originated with, or been ordered by, their respective companies, which are members of the Underwriters Association, but that the State Insurance Commissioner has established and directed enforcement of the rates in question.

Entirely aside from the question of merit or justification of the revised rates, will you kindly advise this newspaper, for publication, whether the State Insurance Department establishes fire insurance rates for this or any other community.

Respectfully,
THE REPUBLICAN,
Per. Chas. E. Dorworth.

To the foregoing letter, Commissioner McCulloch replied immediately, as follows:

Insurance Department,
Harrisburg, Jan. 31, 1925.

Chas. E. Dorworth,
The Republican,
Bellefonte, Pa.

Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of your inquiry of the 29th instant and in reply beg to say that the Insurance Commissioner has nothing whatever to do with the making of rates for fire insurance.

The law gives the Insurance Commissioner no authority whatever in regard to rates, except where discrimination may be shown he has the authority to investigate and to order the discrimination removed if he finds that there actually is discrimination in rates between properties with the same hazard.

Yours truly,
SAMUEL W. McCULLOCH,
Insurance Commissioner.

Auto Over Bank.

A Willys Knight touring car, occupied by two Jersey Shore residents, turned over last Sunday afternoon in lower Bald Eagle valley near Blanchard. The car rolled over the embankment and landed upside down near the old canal. The occupants were not much injured and the car was able to return to Jersey Shore under its own power.

County Raid Rumored.

The presence in Bellefonte this week of a number of additional State policemen prompted rumors that a county-wide raid is being planned.

BRAKEMAN MET DEATH UNDER ENGINE WHEELS

W. G. Newman Victim of Sad Accident at Chemical Plant.

MARRIED LAST JUNE

William G. Newman, of Milesburg, wss killed almost instantly on Tuesday evening when the "dinkey" engine at the Chemical Lime company, where he was employed, ran over him and dragged his body about 15 feet along the rails.

Newman had been employed at the Chemical company plant for some time in the drill gang, but on the night of his death had been transferred to the position of brakeman on the dinkey. The engine was backing out of the quarry and pulling a car of stone after it. Newman and another man were standing on the step of a cab, when the former noticed a chain dragging under the engine. Without signalling his intention he reached down in an effort to grasp the chain. He lost his hold on the hand rail and fell under the wheels. His companion made a grab for him and then yelled to the engineer, Walter Cathcart, but was unable to attract his attention immediately, as the cab door was closed.

When the engine was finally stopped, Newman's body was still under it. It was necessary to procure jacks and raise the locomotive before the terribly mangled remains could be removed.

Newman was born at Milesburg, a son of William and Elsie Sheckler Newman, and was 21 years of age. He was united in marriage last June to Miss Emma Dyke, who survives with his parents and the following brothers and sisters: George, of Milesburg; Margaret, Sue, Catherine, Pauline, Luther, Mary, James, Helen, Charles, Pearl, Donald and Blain, all at home. Funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Presbyterian church at Milesburg. Interment in the Trcziyuiny cemetery.

CRIMINAL TRIAL LIST

Forty-one Cases Scheduled for Trial at February Court.

District Attorney Walker has listed 41 criminal cases for trial at the February term of Court. In each of the following, the Commonwealth is the prosecutor:

N. R. Lamereaux, larceny.
Wilbert Stine, statutory offense.
Edgar Holter, statutory offense.
Harry Jackson, disorderly conduct.
Paul Bobinchak, Nick Gerbinsky, Leonard Generick, Frank LeCorre, Tony Sternitski, Leo Generick, Jakes LeCorre, Mike Miskovitch, John Holeva, John Miskovitch, William LeCorre, Frank Sternitski, Valentine Marosky, and Frank Emala, rioting.
Charles H. Bierly, assault and battery.
David Hendershot, violation of liquor laws.
Mary C. Watson, common scold.
Thomas Fanning, statutory offense.
Harry Woomer, assault and battery.
Winceta and Wincety Betrizum, violation of liquor laws.
Daniel Sharer, pointing firearms.
William Miller, statutory offense.
William J. Parker, operating motor vehicle under the influence of liquor.
Jon Franeck, assault and battery.
George W. Jacobs, larceny.
Mike Suncharovik, assault and battery.
Russell Kline, false pretense.
John Warr, statutory offense.
Harry Inhoof, statutory offense.
John Pinchok, manslaughter.
Raymond Harpster, statutory offense,
Frank Auman, murder. This case will be the first to come before the Court on Monday morning. S. D. Gettig has been appointed special prosecutor for the commonwealth, since District Attorney Walker is a member of the law firm appearing as counsel for the defendant.

Killed Children and Father.

Walter Bingaman, a well known farmer of Coventry, near Pottstown, last Saturday morning killed his father and two children, while in a religious frenzy. The man was taken into custody several hours after the tragedy, when he was found calmly reading a Bible in an adjoining room. His wife had fled from the house the night before, after he had severely beat her. When he was taken into custody he said, "I did right. A spirit told me to kill them and I did."

4 CARRIERS 30 YEARS AGO TOWN HAS SAME NUMBER

Bellefonte's Mail Delivery Service Requires More Men.

WASHINGTON AT FAULT

Bellefonte business men, as well as citizens generally, want better postal delivery service, but somehow they don't get it.

Some other towns seem to be able to secure improved service, but Bellefonte is not in the preferred class. And nobody knows why. The nearest "The Republican" is able to place the responsibility is upon the postal department at Washington.

Postmaster John Knisely is big enough to receive criticism when he is responsible, and if "The Republican" believed him at fault in the present instance we would not hesitate to say so. Until we are better informed, we will continue to believe that the fault lies at Washington.

What our business men say the town needs is some new system whereby the business section may have prompt delivery of mail without this resulting in greater delay and inconvenience to persons in the residential sections. By some it is suggested that an additional carrier be attached to the office to handle deliveries in the business section, exclusively. Such a plan would enable the present carriers to make deliveries more promptly to the residential sections. This has been advocated at various times, but always rejected.

The plain facts are that Bellefonte is today trying to handle delivery of mails with exactly the same number of carriers—four—as we had thirty years ago. It shouldn't be necessary to offer any additional argument at Washington in support of a request for an additional carrier, or possibly two more than the present force.

Today the four Bellefonte carriers deliver more than four times the quantity of mail than was delivered by the same number of men thirty years ago.

When Bellefonte's four carriers were delivering the mails thirty years ago, the total business of the Bellefonte postoffice, that means income, amounted to something like $9,000

Today, the yearly income of the Bellefonte office is somewhere in the neighborhood of $40,000—more than four times what it was thirty years ago.

With these facts and figures submitted at Washington, one would be willing to believe that the postal department would be ashamed to refuse a request for one or two additional carriers.

The present force at the Bellefonte postoffice are doing the best they can. They are over-worked and under-paid. They are loaded down like so many pack horses when they start out on a delivery trip. The best they can do is make a delivery through the business section, then re trace their steps to the postoffice, load up again, and tramp over the same ground on their way to the residential sections. It isn't a fair deal for the patrons or the carriers. It isn't fair to Postmaster Knisely, because the criticism from disgusted patrons is hurled at him instead of being lodged at Washington, where it belongs. His is the only head in sight, so patrons make it the target.

Years ago the Bellefonte postoffice handled really nothing but Bellefonte business. Now it handles stamps and other supplies for virtually the whole of Centre County, except Philipsburg and State College.

The conclusion of "The Republican" is that the postal department, having tried it for thirty years, is convinced that Bellefonte will s and for anything, and that the postal department guessed it just about right. A lot of other towns have better delivery service simply because they won't stand for poor delivery service.

Fire in Dwelling House.

Fire which originated in a soot clogged chimney, broke out in the frame dwelling house of Mrs. Charles R. Kurtz, on High St., about 7:45 Tuesday morning. When discovered the flames had burned through the floor and were gaining rapid headway. A large chemical tank from the Centre Democrat office was emptied before the fire companies arrived. The flames were extinguished by the further use of chemicals. The damage was slight.

Old Age Pension Killed.

The State Supreme Court on Monday handed down an opinion sustaining the Dauphin County Court declaring the Old Age Pension law unconstitutional. Unless further action is taken by the Legislature, this ends the matter.

COMMISSIONERS DEMAND PRISON BILL SHOW-DOWN

Ask Penitentiary Officials to Furnish Detailed Statement.

HAVE POWER TO AUDIT

The Board of Commissioners of Centre County want a show-down with the Western Penitentiary before paying 79 cents per day for the maintenance of convicts in 1924. They want to know the cause for the jump of nearly 16 cents per day over the rate for 1923, resulting in an increase to Centre County alone of over $1136 The 79 cents rate is the highest known in the history of Pennsylvania prisons.

The Centre County Commissioners also want to be officially informed whether the 79 cents per day actually covers all, or only a part, of maintenance costs incurred by the penitentiary in 1924. It has been reported from time to time that the actual cost was 91 or 92 cents per day, but that to keep down criticism in counties affected the penitentiary management in some manner charged off 12 or 13 cents of this and applied it to what they call a working capital account and billed counties for only 79 cents Under the law all maintenance costs should be charged to counties.

Upon receiving the bill charging Centre County $1136 more than the 1923 rate per day would have amounted to, the County Commissioners addressed the following letter to the Western Penitentiary:—

January 30, 1925

Western Penitentiary of Penna.,
Pittsburgh, Penna.

Attention of C. J. Roesler, Chief Clerk.

Dear Sir:—The Commissioners of Centre County have directed me to write you and say they want a detailed statement setting forth just what the items of expense were included in the 79 cents per day for the maintenance of our prisoners for the year 1924. In other words, we wish to know just what this charge of 79 cents per day covers, and is it the total charge for 1924?

Please let us know just as soon as possible, as our Board does not want to pay this account until these matters are explained.

Very truly yours,
CENTRE CO. COMMISSIONERS,
Per, Claud S. Herr, Clerk.

County Commissioners are empowered by law to audit the books of the penitentiary, if they so desire. Such an audit at Rockview prison would, of course, reveal to what extent the tremendous waste in the harvest fields and vegetable gardens was responsible for the unprecedented increase in maintenance costs That wholesale waste resulted in loss amounting to thousands of dollars has never been denied. The cause for such waste and loss is attributed to inefficient management. This audit would also reveal purchases made after Dec. 15, 1924, but by means of convenient book keeping shifted into 1925 operating costs.

If the penitentiary officials render a frank, honest, detailed statement that really explains and does not cover up actual conditions, such a statement will set forth the number of acres planted in various grains and vegetables, and the yield actually secured. Such a statement would also give the truth to the public regarding quantites of grains and vegetables that went to waste and were lost because they were not properly cultivated and harvested. Lack of discipline over convicts, and refusal on their part as a consequence to render anything like efficient service, is given as the real cause for the unprecedented waste on both farms and vegetable gardens.

Such a statement would also make it perfectly clear to the public why Rockview, with some of the finest, largest farms to be found anywhere, were so complete a failure in 1924 due to neglect, that the prison has for some time past, and is today, actually buying feed for the prison horses and other livestock. If anybody doubts this they need only go out to Rockview almost any day and see farmers delivering great, large quantities of oats, etc. This will, of course, have to be continued until the Rockview farms produce oats next fall. With 600 convicts there to do the work, common sense would suggest that the farms could be operated to produce at least enough feed for the prison livestock. They were not so operated in 1924, however, or Rockview would not today be buying feed. What practical farmers in Centre County think of such management, or rather lack of management, requires no great strain on one's imagination. The only defense for such conditions is that Rockview has been operated on a "Golden Rule" theory,—meaning that the convicts largely governed themselves and worked just about when and as little as they pleased—that this theory proved a costly failure, and that now the tax payers must pay the bill.

Open Bids on Friday at Harrisburg For New Highway in Bald Eagle Valley

Construction of 25 Miles of Modern Road, Including 4 New Bridges, May Cost $600,000 to $1,000,000—Hundreds of Men will be Employed.

WILL BE BIG AID TO BUSINESS

Bids will be opened at Harrisburg on Friday and Saturday for building the proposed modern highway from Snow Shoe Intersection to Bald Eagle, in Bald Eagle valley. With the awarding of the contracts, and actual beginning of operations as soon as weather conditions permit, that section of Centre County will witness a period of the greatest activity. Business conditions in the County in many lines will feel the effect of operations conducted on such a large scale.

Twenty-five miles of modern road are to be constructed before next winter, according to present plans. Two contracts will be awarded. Work will be started simultaneously at opposite ends of the twenty-five mile stretch. What the completed project will cost is problematical. All manner of predictions are being made. The completed work, including four new bridges and numerous culverts, some predict, will run anywhere from $600,000 to $1,000,000.

Bellefonte's stone quarries will probably be among the local industries to benefit most from the road construction. It is estimated that over 50,000 tons of limestone will be used. The contractors will probably conduct boarding tents for hundreds of laborers along the highway. It is only reasonable to anticipate that local merchants will share in the furnishing of supplies of various kinds.

It is expected that announcement will be made in the near future of the several detours being arranged for handling traffic through that section until the new highway is completed.

ONLY COAL CO. DIVIDEND PAID FROM $3000 LOAN

GOT NOTE AS SECURITY

Bellefonte investors in the Blanchard—Moshannon Mining Co. never shared in the wonderful profits which had been promised, but upon one occasion they did receive a small dividend. It could hardly be called a dividend, for it was computed much the same as interest on a bond. That is, the shareholder was paid a dividend, or interest, only from the date of his payment for stock to January 1st, 1923.

This dividend for fractional periods totalled something like $3000 or $3200. Even though the amounts were small, stockholders naturally assumed the money came from profits, that is, earnings over and above general operating costs. The Bellefonte directors believed such to be the case, for they had been assured of it when the dividend payment was authorized.

It subsequently became known to the Bellefonte directors and some other local stockholders that the $3000 used in paying this small dividend was secured as a loan from a Bellefonte man who, acting in the best of faith, gave his personal check for the amount, and that he received a $3000 note as security. Incidentally, the $3000 note remains unpaid, unless payment has been in made quite recently, which is believed to be improbable.

When the dividend was authorized it was represented to the Bellefonte directors that sufficient profits were available. To the Bellefonte man who was prevailed upon to temporarily loan $3,000 to make up the dividend it was represented that a number of cars of coal had been sold, that the money for it would be received in a month or two, and that out of this money his $3,000 would be repaid. This transaction was negotiated privately and unknown to the Bellefonte directors. In fact, they did not learn of it for some time afterward. It is said that their first knowledge of it was when the Bellefonte man told of his repeated and unsuccessful attempts to have the $3 000 returned to him. He declared that when he loaned the $3,000 he expected that the note for a like amount as security would bear the signature of Wm. G. Blanchard, who was president of the company. When the note was received in Bellefonte the man who had advanced the $3,000 became indignant because it did not bear Blanchard's signature. When repeated requests for payment of the loan had failed to bring about the return of his $3,000, he placed the facts before Bellefonte friends who had also purchased stock.

Bellefonte stockholders are inclined to resent the wording of a paragraph in Blanchard's reply to the petition of N. E. Robb and Robert F. Hunter for the appointment of receivers. In the paragraph in question, Blanchard emphasized the point that Mr. Robb and Mr. Hunter had paid nothing for their common stock. This is, of course, true, just as it is true that every other investor received free, as a bonus, one share of common stock for each share of preferred stock purchased. Blanchard, intentionally or otherwise, did not explain this phase of it, thereby creating the impression that Mr. Robb and Mr. Hunter had been favored in the matter of their common stock. Such was not the case, which fact was well known to Blanchard when he prepared his statement.

Bellefonte on New Air Route.

With the passage of the Kelly bill recently, providing a new air mail route, to be known as the "southwest route between New York and New Orleans," Bellefonte was designated as the first stop out of New York. Stations on this route will probably be New York, Bellefonte, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Dayton, Cincinnati, Louisville, Memphis and New Orleans. Connections will eventually be made from the latter city, to Latin American countries. The new service will be inaugurated in about a month and ships will probably leave Bellefonte daily at about 6 A. M. for Pittsburgh.

More Delay in Bank Case.

The United States Supreme Court adjourned on Monday until March 2nd., without handing down a decision in the Centre County Bank matter.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Julian Woman Discharged Shot Gun Into Breast, But Lives.

Mrs. Jennie M. Irvin, residing on a farm near Julian, last Saturday made a second unsuccessful attempt to end her life. While other members of the family were absent from the house, she discharged the contents of a shot gun into her breast. She was rushed to the Philipsburg State Hospital, where it is believed she has a chance for recovery.

Mrs. Irvin has been brooding over the death of her mother which occurred several weeks ago, and has several times threatened to take her life, but the threats were not regarded seriously by the members of her family. Several days previously she made the first attempt, slashing her wrist with a razor. A deep wound was made, which bled profusely, but medical aid was summoned and the blood was staunched before any serious harm resulted. She is about 45 years old.

Vote Against New Bridge.

A great deal of agitation was caused in Philipsburg last week when the joint board of viewers, appointed to inspect the Pine St. bridge in that town, connecting Philipsburg and Chester Hill, refused to consent to a new bridge. The board of viewers consisted of John Scollins, H. A. Reese and J. S. Michaels, of Clearfield County, and L. E. Swartz, H. B. Shattuck and M. Ward Fleming, of Centre County. A crowd jammed the assembly room of the Moshannon National Bank on Saturday to hear the proceedings. The viewers defeated the project by a vote of 5 to 1. Attorneys S. D. Gettig, of Bellefonte, and A. M. Liveright, of Clearfield, represented the County Commissioners, three of whom were present.

School House Burned.

The Weaver school house, which has stood on the back road from Pleasant Gap to Zion for the past 45 years, was totally destroyed by fire, which originated in a defective flue, last Friday morning about ten o'clock The old building housed some 31 pupils who were taught by Ray Ishler. A new furnace had recently been installed and it is thought that the increased fire could not be taken care of by the old flue. At a meeting of the school directors of Spring Township on Saturday morning, it was decided to divide the 31 pupils among the various other schools in the vicinity. No definite plans for rebuilding have been made.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

HELPED ADD 20,000 MEMBERS TO ROLLS

Carroll J. Swan, newly elected commander of the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion at Boston, has been very active in the affairs of the Legion for several years. His latest outstanding activity was as chief of staff to Gen. Clarence Edwards, commander of the Massachusetts department, in the great membership campaign of 1924, as the result of which more than 20,000 members were added to the department rolls. The elaborate plans for the campaign, modeled after an attack of war days, were worked out by Mr. Swan.

Mr. Swan has also been active in the Military Order of the World War. He was for two years commander of the Boston chapter and for one year national vice commander of that order. He was chairman of the general committee to run the 1924 convention of the Military Order at Boston.

Enlisting in the First corps of cadets in the Massachusetts militia in 1902, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1914. He organized Company D of the One Hundred and First engineers in the Twenty-sixth division and was made its captain. He took the company overseas and engaged in all the campaigns of the division. He was promoted successively to major and lieutenant colonel. He was the author of the first book by an American soldier on the World war, which was published under the title of "My Company" by order of the War department in 1918.

A graduate of Harvard, Mr. Swan has been engaged since leaving college in the advertising business. He is New England representative for a string of newspapers.

Service Men Are Urged to Investigate First

Watson B. Miller, chairman of the American Legion National Rehabilitation committee, has issued a statement warning former service men with disability claims before the United States veterans' bureau against coming personally to Washington to appeal their cases without first securing definite information that their papers are in Washington.

Under the new reorganization of the veterans' bureau all files of papers have been sent out to the regional offices of the bureau and no action can be secured in Washington on these cases until the papers have been returned. Mr. Miller points out that men go to Washington to press their claims without sufficient funds to sustain them until their papers arrive in Washington, and soon find themselves in desperate circumstances. The Legion and other agencies in the city are not able to care for the normal load of transient former service men arriving in Washington without funds on one mission or another.

Auxiliary Interested in Real Home Girls

"The old-fashioned girl who can cook and sew is the great hope of the future," declared Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, national president of the American Legion auxiliary, in announcing that the auxiliary would co-operate nationally with the American Home Economics association in the instruction and advancement of home economics. Mrs. Oliphant continued:

"The girl who can make her own up-to-date, stylish frocks and then put on her apron and cook a dinner, may be considered old-fashioned, but, in my opinion, she's a real winner. There is no greater need than for us to get back to homework and home-cooking. Let us stand by the 'home girl'. In the interest of community and national stability the auxiliary is going to co-operate in the advancement of home economics and administration."

ENDOWMENT FUND IS GIVEN GOOD START

Organization work for the American Legion endowment fund movement is now under way in a limited number of states, according to Russell Creviston, national adjutant of the Legion. Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky were the states which decided first to launch the project. It will be extended gradually until it becomes nation-wide in scope.

Field secretaries took the field with the new year. These men, expertly trained for their task, are loaned by the national organization of the Legion to the various state departments to assist them in organizing for the work.

Jarvis Price of Topeka, Kans., is the field secretary working with Department Commander Thomas S. McConnell of Fowler, Ind., and Department Adjutant Frank H. Henley of Indianapolis in organizing in Indiana. Randolph Bishop of Johnson City, Tenn., is co-operating with Department Commander Frank D. Rash of Earlington, Ky., and Department Adjutant T. H. Hayden, Jr., of Louisville in organization work in that department. Department Commander Howard P. Savage and Department Adjutant F. J. Heckel of Illinois are being assisted in Chicago by Philip B. Stapp of Greensburg, Ind., and in the rest of the state by Reau Komp of Bloomington, Ill.

As the field secretaries left national headquarters at Indianapolis, members of the permanent headquarters staff made their contributions. A total of $1,495 in cash and pledges was given. Officials in charge of the endowment movement said that on this basis the Legion and the auxiliary alone would make up a fund of $20,000,000.

Announcement was made that the endowment will be in the form of a perpetual trust. It will perpetuate the name and principles of the Legion long after all Legionnaires, all disabled veterans of the World war and all orphans of veterans are gone. The principal of the fund is to be held intact. It will be administered, after the Legion is gone, by organizations designated by a board consisting of the then President of the United States and other prominent persons.

Acceptance on the honorary committee for the endowment movement have been received from: W. G. McAdoo of Los Angeles, W. W. Atterbury of Pittsburgh, recently chosen as president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company; James A. Flaherty of New Haven, Conn., supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus; John G. Price of Columbus, Ohio, grand exalted ruler of the Elks; Cardinal O'Connell of Boston; John Barton Payne of Chicago, chairman of the American Red Cross; Richard F. Grant, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois; Julius H. Barnes of New York city, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Kenesaw M. Landis of Chicago, commissioner of organized baseball; Mrs. Lou Henry Hoover, wife of the secretary of commerce; Marshall Field III of New York city; Col. Albert A. Sprague, member of the Chicago city administration and formerly chairman of the Legion's national rehabilitation committee; Jesse H. Newlon of Denver, Colo., president of the National Education association; Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord of New York city, Mrs. Medill McCormick of Chicago, Miss Anne Morgan of New York city.

Heads of various patriotic and veteran organizations have accepted membership on the committee. Among them are: Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook of Cooksburg, Pa., president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Dr. Louis F. Arensberg of Pittsburgh, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic; Chauncey W. Herrick of Washington, commander-in-chief of the United Spanish War Veterans; George W. Harries of Chicago, commander-in-chief of the Military Order of the World War.

Past national commanders of the American Legion are members of the honorary committee. They are: Milton J. Foreman of Chicago, Henry D. Lindsley of New York City, Franklin D'Olier of Philadelphia, John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Hanford MacNider of Mason City, Iowa; Alvin Owsley of Dallas, Texas.

All Time Counts, Late Ruling on Compensation

In response to an inquiry by American Legion officials interested in the administration of the adjusted compensation act, Attorney-General Harlan Stone made a ruling pertaining to men who were absent without leave while in service, the gist of which is: The length of service means that portion of time spent in the service of the United States within the limits prescribed by the adjusted compensation act, and that if the veteran has been discharged from the service under honorable conditions, all of the time so spent shall be considered as service regardless of whether or not it was in the guardhouse, on K. P. assignment or in any other place.

Plan Joint Convention

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Texarkana post of the American Legion, it was decided that a special effort will be made to induce the two state Legion conventions to hold their annual conventions jointly at Texarkana in 1926. There is much logic in the move, for the town of Texarkana belongs just as much to one state as the other as it is situated exactly on the Texas-Arkansas state boundary line.

Pretty Things that are made at Home

THE most important item in dress accessories for the coming spring is sure to be neckwear, collar and cuff sets for wear with the plain, simple day frocks and coat dresses which fashion continues to sponsor. Printed and striped silks and crepe de chine, plain and striped linens, light weight flannel, kasha and other cloths, and many plain crepes appear in the displays of spring utility dresses and all of them look to collar and cuff sets for appropriate finishing.

For utility and sports dresses, plain or striped linens in natural and other colors are employed for making round collars and slightly flaring cuffs. Except for stitched bands or rows of little buttons this tailored neckwear is unadorned. But plain linen finished with narrow cluny edging, makes a set that will serve for day or sports dresses. A set of this kind with scalloped edges is pictured here. Needle-women who can embroider, may choose to introduce color on unbleached linen sets by means of colored floss. Handwork gives a class to neckwear which ready-made pieces can't equal. The designs are usually very simple with two or three colors employed. A set of this kind appears at the upper right of the picture. Even the amateur in needlecraft can make the pretty lace sets in which wide and narrow insertions are overcast or whipped together and finished with rolled hem and narrow Irish or cluny edging, as in the set at the left. A collar and vestee set with cuffs to match is pictured, made of lace insertions and pintucked net, which comes by the yard. In this set edges are finished with narrow val lace.

Besides the distinction of handwork in making them, sets acquired in this way are less expensive than ready-made pieces. Then there is opportunity for "the personal touch," which usually comes high, and the selection of attractive patterns in laces and in embroidery.

Now that we have our adoring eyes on spring apparel—while our budget for spring clothes resolutely stands between us and many things we desire—what shall we do about the beaded gown? If you will read society reports in the newspapers, look upon lovely ladies at social functions, or study the pages of smart fashion journals, you will soon know as much about beaded gowns as the observant fashion writer does. What she knows is that every one, from her majesty at the head to little Lady Debutante at the foot of the class in styles, owns a beaded gown. "The bride's mother wore a crepe gown beaded in," etc, or "The bride's dress was trimmed with lace, incrusted with crystal and pearl beads," or "Many ladies at the White House reception wore beaded gowns," impress themselves by sheer force of repetition. Therefore there is but one thing to do—take our budget firmly by the hand and lead it in the direction of beaded dresses.

In the new collections there are many lovely printed crepes, including georgette, in which floral patterns are outlined or worked out with colored beads. These are quite new and very attractive. There are also many beautiful crepe de chine dresses, more or less elaborately beaded. An example of gorgeous bead embroidery appears in a novel design on the graceful dress of crepe de chine shown here in the glowing color called "burnt russet." Fine restraint in working out the pattern makes this a gown which may be worn for the most formal as well as less formal occasions.

There is great variety in beaded gowns and a good many of them are quite inexpensive. Paris sponsors them, royalty wears them and therefore we cannot go wrong in choosing one for our "dressup" wear.

Saw Nothing Else

These days of short dresses, sheer silk hose and up-to-the-minute styles make life miserable for many of the sterner sex. A sophomore at the university was reprimanding a frosh for not speaking when they passed. "Didn't see you," the freshman explained. "Why, I walked within a foot of you," the upper classman protested. "Gosh! You musta been the guy with the girl who had on those open-work stockings," replied the accused youth.—Columbus Dispatch.

INDIGESTION
Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 9 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach.

There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloat after eating, food repeating, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are, nevertheless, traceable to an acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victims in miserable health year after year.

The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid-stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with intestinal indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pains in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise.

Roped by Telephone

By HERBERT L. McNARY

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE OFFICE door opened and Cyril Tinkham swung around from his desk with a hopeful, expectant look he kept in stock to greet his clients, but the look faded and while it did not actually turn into one of disappointment, still it faded. He was looking into the countenance of his friend, Roscoe Blake.

Those features were usually illuminated by a smile, but Roscoe was not smiling now. Maybe that meant trouble, and maybe that meant a client—even Roscoe might be embroiled in legal difficulties.

"Something wrong?" asked Cyril.

"You said it," grunted Roscoe. "That's why I'm here."

"You want legal advice," declared Cyril confidently.

"No I don't either. I'd have to pay for that. I want sympathy. Besides it's too late for advice."

"What happened?"

"I got hooked for $500."

"Cards or horses?"

"Neither—the stock market."

"Haven't you a comeback?"

"Now, you're looking for a case," laughed Roscoe. "Nothing doing. I'm not a poor loser. I'll take my licking, but just the same I like to pour my tale of woe out on somebody. I could use that $500.

"What was the stock?"

"Secco Copper."

"Never heard of it," declared Cyril with finality.

"And you never will. It was never listed."

"What? You mean to tell me, Roscoe, that you bought an unlisted stock?"

"Worse. I bought it over the telephone from someone I never saw."

"Well, of all the fool stunts. I thought you—"

"Wait a minute," interrupted Roscoe, rising from his seat and crossing to the window. "I said I wanted sympathy, not a lecture. You never listened to this bird who talked to me. He was an artist and deserved all he got, including my $500."

"Well, no artist would get me over the telephone."

"You seem confident. I'd like to get this chap to rig you and make a bet on it. He owes me that much at least after roping me."

"Go ahead," taunted the lawyer.

Roscoe looked out at the dreary buildings and then he brightened. "All right, it's a bet. How much?"

"How much do you want to make it?" asked the lawyer.

"Make it the $500 I lost."

"You want to lose an even thousand, I see."

Roscoe smiled. "Did you ever hear that saying about he who smiles last?"

A week or two elapsed before Cyril Tinkham picked up his desk phone to answer a voice that immediately intrigued him. There was something magnetic about the tone, some indefinable personality.

"Mr. Tinkham? Mr. Barker speaking on the recommendations of some very prominent people who have selected you as an enterprising young lawyer to interest in a new invention. We need representative men to endorse it and get it started. You might naturally expect that I would call personally with such a proposition rather than talk to you over the phone; but it happens that only by this method can I give you a demonstration. This invention is something that will revolutionize the telephone industry as you will readily understand when I tell you that while I have been talking to you, you have been scribbling on a red blotter with a yellow pencil."

Cyril gasped and snapped his head away from the mouth-piece, which he inspected in amazement.

"I don't wonder you sprang away," continued the voice, laughing pleasantly. "And now let's have a further demonstration. Do something and I'll tell you what it is. You have just put the pencil in your right hand vest pocket—now you place it in your left—you shifted the receiver to your right ear—you are now standing up — now you are at the desk — you are dancing — now you are waving your arms. Does that satisfy you, Mr. Tinkham?"

"It certainly does," beamed the cocky lawyer. "And you want me to take an interest in it?"

"Not exactly. We just want you to vouch for it in our advertisements."

"But don't I get a chance to come in on it," protested the lawyer.

"Well," hesitated the voice. "The issue is small and about taken up. I might be able to procure you a thousand shares. Would you take that?"

"Certainly. How much do I pay?"

"You pay $500 to your friend Roscoe Blake in accordance with the terms of a bet you recently made. And now, if you will glance out your window to the story above of the building running at right angles to yours, you will see where Roscoe has been watching you make a darn fool of yourself all over your desk."

Kilimanjaro, the Everest of Africa

Is Much Higher Than Blanc or Whitney.

Washington, D. C. — Kilimanjaro mountain of Tanganyika territory, which has been the object of a recent expedition, is one of the most notable "violent contrasts" in Africa, sometimes termed the continent of "violent contrasts."

"Although Africa spreads itself to both temperate zones," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society, "by whim of geography its only notable snow peaks are under the sun's most direct glare and, of its 'high spots' near the Equator, Kilimanjaro is chief.

"Kilimanjaro was unknown to the world a century ago, and unscaled until 1889, but now a railway from Mombasa approaches its flanks. In its way it affords Africa claim to the greatest mountain on the face of the earth. Everest, at 29,002 altitude is almost 10,000 feet higher than Kilimanjaro; there are even peaks having similar volcanic origin rising higher in South and Central America, but all of those great ones rise on the backs of their neighbors. Kilimanjaro stands alone in the heat-scorched wind-swept plain. Without even the company of a mountain ridge it rises solitary from a plateau at 2,500 to 4,000 feet to the snow-capped majesty of 19,819 feet.

Overshadows Blanc and Whitney.

"Europe is proud of its Alps and Pyrenees and the United States considers the Rockies mighty mountains, yet Kilimanjaro is nearly a mile higher than Mt. Whitney, America's tallest peak. It is almost 4,000 feet higher than Mt. Blanc, Europe's leading summit. Kilimanjaro has for company on the equator Mt. Kenya, just over the border, giving its name to Kenya colony and 'the Mountains of the Moon,' officially Ruwenzori, in Uganda, feeding the White Nile with water for Egypt.

"Natives inhabiting the slopes of Kilimanjaro have the legend that the mountain has a silver peak. To tribes who have never seen snow, this seemed the most satisfactory explanation for the gleaming white cap. They associated it with their gods, and the first white men to explore it had great difficulty satisfying the natives that they would not drive away Rayli, the god in the form of a giant cow inhabiting the mountain's high plains.

"The mountain is a small world in itself, or more properly half a world. The snow cap is its polar cap; the high, cold ridges, without vegetation, are like Labrador or the Alaskan steppe, but instead of harboring reindeer, they support flocks of eland. The mountain is a game preserve and the flocks thrive.

"Next comes a belt of heather similar to that of the Scotch highlands. Then the elevation drops, the region of heavy precipitation appears and with it the rain-forest, almost constantly swathed in mist. This thins to the ordinary tropical forest and then dwindles to the mountain's 'temperate zone,' where the tribesmen live. It is estimated 125,000 people now reside on the slopes of Kilimanjaro, and they are counted by some explorers among the most intelligent and progressive natives of Africa.

"The Chagga and other tribes even employ irrigation to grow their crops of bananas, sweet potatoes and grains. Sometimes they merely divert a mountain stream, but frequently considerable engineering skill is used to bring water through tubes or channels considerable distances. The forest belt, not Kilimanjaro's glaciers, supplies most of this life-giving water. The rain-forest is a vast sponge, drinking up the rain and squeezing it out in springs.

Shun Crater and Plain.

"Below the agricultural belt is the scorched dry plain. It is almost as impossible to get the natives to venture down to the hot plain as to get them to approach the ice-capped crater.

"Elephants inhabit the thick forests of Kilimanjaro's slopes. Explorers often see their spoors on banks seemingly impossible for such huge animals to manage. One writer reports seeing marks indicating that the elephants thrust their tusks into the ground to steady themselves on a descent, and that scruffed bark showed that they wound their trunks about trees to help themselves up to higher positions."

Hostess Latest Barber Shop Job

Smoothes Away Embarrassments for Women.

New York.—For the first time in history, barber shops have hostesses. These directors of hirsute traffic suggest type of hairdressing, smooth away the embarrassment which many women feel in seeking a male barbers' advice as to coiffures and assist patrons in spending their money.

This development was inaugurated by a department store which for years maintained its place of business on Sixth avenue and was somewhat removed from the Fifth avenue trade. Now the concern has a Fifth avenue shop and has hired hostesses for its barber shop to make patrons feel at home in the new surroundings.

Duties of the Hostesses.

Strange it is, but true, that many of the newer comers to this country find more difficulty in spending their money than in getting it. New York is full of newly rich people of foreign birth. With increasing prosperity the women of these families have found that the old standards of attractiveness which appealed to the men in other countries are obsolete here and they are determined to live up to improved conditions. Hence the bob, the barber and the hostess.

The hostesses of the present-day shops are counted on to help them. Most of the hostesses employed by the smart shops today are of certain age. But all are shining examples of preservation. Young women are not sought, but a woman of fifty who still has attractive hair, although it may be white, a fresh skin and a figure can usually obtain such a position. Her chances are enhanced if she speaks one or more foreign languages. For the cashiers of the women's barber shops cash more checks signed with "his mark" than any institution except dealers in foreign exchange.

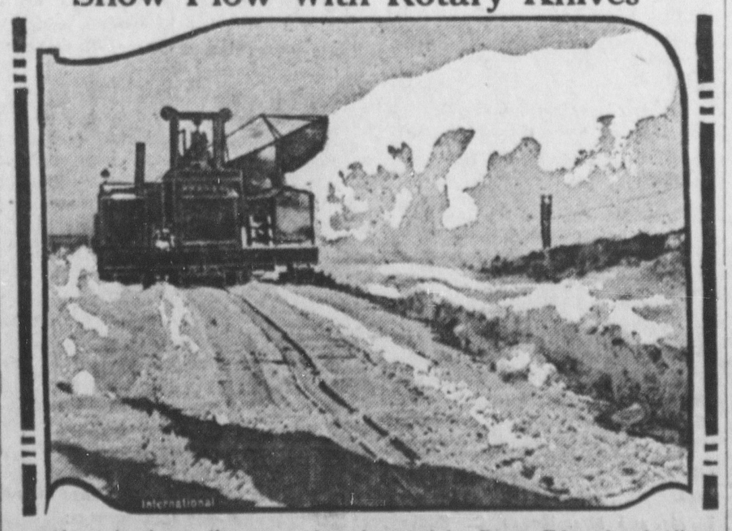
In the men's shop a barber who will not talk is at a premium; but in the women's hairdressing establishment a barber who cannot talk interestingly has but a brief time between himself and separation from the payroll.

Other Shops Adopt Plan.

The so-called exclusive shops for women's clothing just off Fifth avenue also have taken the hostess to their payrolls. To earn the weekly salary check it is necessary for these women not only to wear clothes well but to talk them well. One shop is so exclusive that it sells nothing for cash. Before one may buy a sample of its products, it is necessary to establish an account for $1,500.

For many years this shop has never sold a model for less than $250 but recently it has established a department on an upper floor where those who do not feel equal to purchases at that rate occasionally can buy a dress as low as $90. That, however, is the irreducible minimum, as the hostess will tell you.

Snow Plow With Rotary Knives



Above is shown the snow plow, invented by Roger Edwards of Albert Lea, Minn., which can cut a 12-foot swath at the rate of eight miles an hour through snow from three to five feet deep. Such a demonstration took place between Albert Lea and Owantonna. Experts who witnessed it remarked that it could keep roads in the Northwest open all winter. The machine is propelled by a ten-ton caterpillar tractor with two sets of rotary knives operated by a 120-horse-power engine.

Yank Forbids Samoans to Use Lordly Title

Apia, Samoa.—The title of "tuimanu'a" of the Manua district of American Samoa has been prohibited by the governor, Capt. Edward S. Kellogg, United States navy.

Manuans who claim the right to bestow the title are aggrieved.

The governor explained he would not allow the title to be held for the reason that it was equivalent to a kingship, and under the American government there could be no king.

A large number of Samoan titles are designated at "tui." The word is Tongan, introduced into the Samoan language. A dictionary of the Samoan language defines it is "high chief" or "king." But the Samoan word for king is "tupu."

A tuimanu'a does not exercise any political power, but his person is considered sacred and he commands the highest respect.

ECONOMY IN DAIRYING

Weeding Out Poor Cows Essential to Securing Best Results.

Weeding, breeding and feeding are essential to greater economy in dairy production, says E. B. Fitts, dairy extension specialist of the Penna. State College.

Under present conditions, weeding out the poor cows in the herd becomes imperative. A good pure-bred sire at the head of the herd will breed milking ability into the future herd, he declares. A balanced ration based upon home grown legumes and corn silage aids greatly in cutting production costs.

"The present situation in the dairy industry emphasizes the importance of and the need for economy in production" Fitts points out. "The production side of the industry taken as a whole is not operated at a very high degree of efficiency. Handicaps of inferior cows, improper feeding and poor management exist on every hand. The situation therefore, is acute for the margin of profit has always been small.

Cost of production records based on cow testing association reports show that the cost of producing milk in herds where the average production is 10,000 pounds annually is but one-half of that in herds where the average per head is 4,000 pounds he says.

"Dairy farming is a business," says Fitts. "There is real competition. Efficiency in cattle, economy in operation and quality in products must be watchwords for dairymen in the face of the present conditions. The future holds much of promise for the business dairyman."

1,103 Cows Give More Milk.

Seven hundred and forty-one cows in Keystone cow testing associations produced more than 40 pounds of fat and 1,103 cows gave more than 1,000 pounds of milk during December, according to the monthly report just made public by C. R. Gearhart, dairy extension specialist of Penna. State College. Twenty-seven associations reported 8,030 cows on test. Still better records were made by 294 cows which produced more than 50 pounds of fat and 535 cows which gave more than 1,200 pounds of milk. Four cows were reported on official test, and 52 unprofitable cows were sold during the month. A registered Holstein, owned by I. H. Neuber, of the Sullivan County Association, was highest individual cow in milk production with 2 722 pounds. C. S. Henry & Son, of the Edinboro Association, in Erie County, owned the highest butterfat producer, a grade Holstein which led with 91.2 pounds. The Cumberland Association captured the 10-cow average high score with 68.3 pounds of butterfat. Coventry Association, of Chester County, led in total number cows tested with 529. Washington Association, in Washington County, had the greatest number of 40-pound cows, 66, and the largest number of cows producing more than 1,000 pounds of milk, 92.

Jersey Cow Makes State Record.

Producing 12,659 pounds of milk and 521 5 pounds of butterfat, Option's Ima Daytonia, a Jersey cow owned by Pennsylvania State College, recently established a new state record in the 305 day division. Raleigh's Majesty, owned by White Horse Farm, Paoli, formerly held the Keystone state record with 13,555 pounds of milk and 613 4 pounds of butterfat. The new champion was bred by G. B. Dayton, Birchardville. She was purchased by the college because of her outstanding breed type. She has now proved that type and production can go hand in hand. At present she is producing over 50 pounds a day, according to P. D. Jones, dairy herdsman at the college. It is interesting to note that it cost $200 to feed Option's Ima Daytonia her 12 tons of rations while she was on test. During that time she consumed 5,233 pounds of grain, 346 pounds of molasses, 843 pounds of dried beef pulp, 8,307 pounds of silage, 4,071 pounds of green feed, 1,860 pounds of roots and 2,872 pounds of alfalfa and mixed hays.

Returns on milk sold amounted to $776 which leaves a handsome profit when cost of feed is deducted. Since all of the milk was sold in the grade A or certified classes, the returns are higher than could be expected.

TONER A. HUGG,
Dep. Coll. Int. Rev.

URGES USES OF LIME

Do It For Land's Sake, Advises State College Specialist.

"For the Land's Sake" apply lime, and if you are growing alfalfa or intend to do so by all means treat the land with lime if it needs it.

Field tests of different forms of lime fail to show any meterial difference in the crops produced where equivalent amounts of actual lime are used, states J. B. R. Dickey, legume extension specialist of the Penna. State College. This is he explains a ton of high analysis, hydrated lime has approximately the same crop producing power as one and one-half tons of finely ground limes one, marl, ground oyster shells or "Plant Lime."

"On account of the core and ash commonly contained in much of the lump lime commonly sold to farmers, and on account of its lumpiness and consequent poor distribution, it has probably about the same practical value, ton for ton, as hydrated lime," he declares. "Ground burned lime, if well burned and not air slacked, will have somewhat higher efficiency."

Coarsely ground limestone containing some particles as large as birdshot should be applied at about double the rate of hydrated lime This courser material, however, is cheaper and easier to handle and will keep the soil sweet for a longer period since the coarser particles dissolve slowly and neutralize acidity as it develops. Heavy applications of very fine lime or limestone probably involve loss and waste much from leaching, Dickey explains.

The reason alfalfa has grown so readily in the limestone valleys and on adjoining shale soils is partly because these soils do not ordinarily tend to become extremely sour, but primarily because lime was cheap and was used liberally on these soils in the past.

"When liberal applications are to be made," this specialist says, "economy should by all means be practiced in securing the cheaper forms of lime, such as forkings, home-burned lime, by-product limes, fine limestone screenings, home ground limestone, or marl from local deposits."

FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College.

LIGHTS ON BREEDERS

Many poultrymen find it profitable to use lights on breeders. In this way the bird's body weight can be maintained and early production assured. It is highly important that the birds should not be forced and a careful system of feeding and management be followed so that good health is assured, say Pennsylvania State College poultry specialists. As a rule, the healthiest breeders produce the largest number of strong chicks.

IMPROVE THE STABLE

Light and ventilation are essential for dairy cattle. These can be provided in any stable. Now is the time to figure out how it is to be done and to take steps to supply these essentials. It pays.

RAISE TON LITTER

A large number of farmers picked their largest litters for the Keystone Ton Litter Club last year. Fifty eight of them made the required weight. Will your name be among the 1925 winners?

ORDER PLANTS EARLY

Green-house men who grow some plants for sale are sowing early cabbage seed now. Whether large or small quantities of plants are to be bought it is advisable to put in your order now if you do not grow your own plants. Early orders help the grower regulate the quantity of seed sown and save you from a possible shortage of plants. This pertains to early cabbage, lettuce, tomatoes, peppers and eggplants.

GET FERTILIZERS

Orchardists who intend to fertilize their orchards should not delay ordering fertilizers until it is time to apply them. Unless applied at the right time many fertilizers lose their "kick" as far as the response of the trees is concerned. This is especially true of nitrate.

OVER THE COUNTY

The season for farm sales has begun and will be the chief diversion of farmers over the county from now until the end of March.

A case of scarlet fever has been reported in the Millheim schools. The school house was thoroughly fumigated on Saturday, and the directors stated that if any more cases develop the school will be closed immediately.

The schools at Woodward were closed on Friday of last week for a ten day period, due to the epidemic of scarlet fever in that place. Neither of the churches in the town held services on Sunday and every possible means of prevention is being used.

George Harpster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Harpster, of Buffalo Run valley, had the misfortune to nearly amputate three of his toes last week, when an axe with which he was felling trees on a lumbering operation slipped and struck his foot. The young man was brought to the Centre County Hospital, where the injury was treated.

On Monday of last week, Sumner Frankenberger, of near Millheim, had a narrow escape from death while felling a tree in the mountains near his father's saw-mill. He had just finished cutting a large pine which was falling, when a limb fell and struck the young man, knocking him unconscious. His face was severely cut and his head badly bruised.

Miss Sarah Zettle and her infant sister, of Spring Mills, met with an accident last week which might easily have resulted fatally. The young woman was taking a sleigh ride through the streets of the town, when in some manner she dropped the reins. The horse bolted and Miss Zettle leaped from the sleigh with the baby in her arms. She was rendered unconscious by the fall and was carried into Dr. Braucht's office, where she was revived. The baby was uninjured.

Guernsey Breeders Meeting.

A number of Guernsey Breeders of Centre County attended the Central Guernsey Breeders Association meeting at Hollidaysburg, Thursday of last week. Although the weather was very bad 30 breeders attended the meeting representing the counties of Centre, Huntingdon, Blair, Clearfield and Cambria. The President, Mr. Gilbert of Tyrone entertained the association to dinner at the Hewitts Cafe after which a business meeting was held. The main speakers were: C. R. Gearhart, State College, "Value of Testing;" E. R. Burkett, WarriorsMark, "Value of Balanced Rations and Croping System;" J. W. Mayes, Howard, "Salesmanship." The members feel that Mr. Shane, the field man, is giving very valuable assistance to the Guernsey Breeders after the completion of the first year and from a business standpoint every man interested in the Guernsey cow should be a member of the association.

Young Husband Comes Forward With Advice

One year after marriage is the moment when a man can talk the soundest sense on the vital subject of marriage. Before that he does not know enough. Afterwards he may know too much and be unable to see the wood for the trees, "A Happy Husband" writes in the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

When I went to the altar last September it was with the old adage for the proper handling of matrimonial quarrels—"When you are in the wrong apologize. When you are in the right apologize twice!"—ringing in my ears. It was good advice and I have never regretted following it.

Women are great hands at giving new lamps for old. Make little sacrifices for them, and they will make big ones for you. "Remember a wife's birthday, it has been wittily said, "and the remaining 364 days of the year will look after themselves."

Considering how careful women are to study our little ways and peculiarities, it seems a pity we do not take more trouble to study theirs. They are really so ridiculously easy to manage, if we only knew it. They do not alter with the ages except on the surface.

The woman of today prizes most the same qualities as the woman of 1924 B. C. did before her—chivalrous instincts, first overtures to reconciliations, the ready shouldering of responsibility and blame. They may not comment on these things at the time, but they will remember them, and the reward will be a hundredfold.

When you shut your mouth tight and smother the clever retort which springs to mind, they know they have got a man. Sometimes they will deliberately do things to test a husband. Lucky the man who successfully survives that test. It is on him, and on him alone, that the uttermost treasures of a woman's soul will one day be lavished.

Proper Diet for Fly

Are you feeding your house flies properly? These delicate creatures, so charming and desirable about the home, can't be happy and healthy on just "any old thing" you leave about for them, says the Kansas City Star.

In the Journal of Experimental Zoology R. W. Glaser tells of a series of experiments to discover just what sort of food is suitable for them. The housewife will appreciate the information.

On an exclusively protein diet they live from one to eight days. Eating only sugar the life period is longer, but no eggs are laid—no baby flies to gladden the home.

Mr. Glaser reached the conclusion that the very best food is sugar and some form of starch that can be eaten and assimilated. On such a diet they thrive, live long and lay plenty of eggs. The average life of the house fly is only about twenty days. In general, female flies live longer than males.

Steam-Heated Bird Nest

Steam-heated nests with steam baths are being used by a pair of bluebirds in Yellowstone park, according to reports to the national park service headquarters at Washington. The happy couple have, however, avoided expensive modern plumbing and steam fittings. They have simply taken over one of nature's big steam plants by constructing their cozy home in the nearly extinct Excelsior geyser cone. Every morning they can be seen darting in and out of the steam.

Plants are also using the geyser as a natural greenhouse. Wild strawberries have been found growing not far from the cone two weeks ahead of their usual season.

Questions of State

The proprietor of a village store was sitting with the loafers who had formed a circle around the stove. His sole assistant was a youngster who had lately drifted in from parts unknown.

A woman entered and asked for a pound of cheese. She would not allow the assistant to wait on her, but insisted on having the proprietor.

The lad must have been trained in some city office, for to this demand he made firm reply:

"Can't disturb him now. He's in conference." — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Linen Defies Time

"A piece of linen, sent to our research department recently from London, though 6,000 years old, was found to be as perfect structurally as the linens we are making today." This was the statement made by W. H. Webb, the chairman of the Irish Linen society, recently, at Oxford, England, and he explained it on the grounds that germs of decay would have nothing to do with linen. Similarly, he said, the windings found in 1881 on the mummy of Rameses II, who oppressed the Israelites in the time of Moses, were still perfect

Good Campaign Story

Just before an election, says Pathfinder Magazine, there was a small group of ready talkers making a lot of noise. One fellow said it reminded him of the farmer who told a restaurant man he was going to drain his frog pond and would gladly sell him a carload of frogs. One day the farmer came in with a market basket full of frogs. The restaurant man said: "Where are the rest of them?"

The farmer said: "This is all I could find. But they made so much noise I was sure there must be a carload."

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Another ÆTNA Check Came This Morning

ISN'T it fine, John! Your eighth week in bed just gone by and we've received two of these checks for $200 each. We can buy that new dining room set now as though nothing had happened.

Every husband ought to take out an ÆTNA DISABILITY POLICY, John. We women are so dependent on what you men do for us—especially when we have children.

Just think—$50 a week as long as you're sick, up to a full year. And at such a trifling cost, too. Oh, John, why will men put off these things until it's too late! We women were never meant to fight hardships that a few cents a day could save us from.

Pine Grove Mills.

That all weather little critter failed to see his image on the 2nd.

Our townsman, Jim Smith, celebrated his 71st birthday anniversary on February 2nd, and his neighbors influenced him to keep in as winter is not over.

Fred Corl motored over from Altoona to spend Sunday with his mother who he found much improved in health.

Tax Collector and harness maker J. M. Elder, is laid up with a heavy cold.

Many persons are in the clutches of the grip. The Neidigh and Herper families are still in quarantine but are in a fair way to recovery.

G. B. Fry and wife and R. W. Reed and wife, motored to Coburn to spend Sunday afternoon with the Edward Reeds and gladden their hearts. Both have been ill but are some better.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rossman and 3 youngsters spent Sunday afternoon at the Earl Corman home at Baileyville.

G. W. Elder, of Millbrook, was a visitor at the R. E. Rossman home at Rock Springs. There are other attractions nearby.

Luther Sunday, who came near losing his life recently by being caught by a blast of dynamite, injuring his nose and other parts of his face, is now getting along nicely.

Postmaster Barr is not improving as rapidly as his friends hoped for. His brother, Ehren, is making a better go of it on crutches and hopes to be discharged from the Centre County hospital soon.

At a recent election of officers held in the Lutheran church here, Hon. J. W. Kepler was elected elder; J. Foster Mann, deacon, and R. E. Rossman, trustee.

'Squire E. H. Auman, accompanied by Fay Randolph, motored to Philadelphia last Monday, visiting relatives and friends. They returned Saturday evening sporting a new Cadillac roadster. It's a "beaut."

N. E. Hess spent Wednesday in the Lumber City arranging to join a sporting club on a hunting trip to Alaska. He was accompanied by his son, Samuel M. Hess.

Bear in mind the lecture on "Profitable Dairying" in the I. O. O. F. hall by P. J. Fitts, this Friday evening. Come and bring your friends. Its free.

Sam Fogelman and wife, of Houserville, were Sunday visitors at the Joseph C. Kustaborder home on the Branch.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Potter and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goodhart, all of Centre Hall, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mason were guests at supper at the home of the Goheen sisters at Rock Springs on Sunday evening.

John Klinger is doing some logging and lumbering this snowy weather, making preparations to erect a 40x50 straw shed at the barn on the Hess farm.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mothersbaugh spent the latter end of the week visiting friends in Altoona. Though they tarried but a short time, they found time to say "How-de-do," to a number of old and dear friends on Sunday afternoon.

Harry McWilliams is spending a month with his sister, Mrs. Alice Buckwalter, at Lewistown. Mr. Buckwalter has been in ill health for the past year or more, having been in a sanitarium. He is now at home but is not much improved.

The big snow of last week, followed by high winds, badly drifted the roads, and travel is through the fields in some places. The state highway department is well equipped and kept their snow plows and scrapers working day and night.

Mrs. Etta Corl and daughter Esther and Mrs. Vera Musser, and Mrs. J. F. Corl, Jr., were callers at the G. B. Fry home at Rock Springs on Monday afternoon. J. F. spent some time looking up the shut ins regarding farm assessments.

We are sorry to learn of the death of Alfred Ripka last Friday morning, from pneumonia, after being ill only three days. He had spent 2 years farming the J. F. Sasserman place at Baileyville and had been engaged only two days before his death to return and aid R. W. Ripka on the farm at Rock Springs.

Trapping seems to be good this season. Guy Rossman came in Friday with 2 red foxes, increasing his fox pelts to 3 dozen. He also has a number of skunk pelts ready for shipment. James Gummo realized a nice sum for the bob-cat he bagged recently, and has a number of fox and skunk pelts ready for market. He is gunning for the person who broke the lock at his cabin in the woods and relieved him of his Marlin and various sporting trophies.

Word has been received from Comrade D. W. Miller of his safe arrival at the Jefferson Hospital at Philadelphia last week and that he stood the journey quite well, arriving in good shape. Examinations are now being made to fit him for operations, of which there may be several. The old veteran is not entirely a stranger there, as 62 years ago, after the battle of Gettysburg, and 10 years ago in May, he underwent the knife for injuries received at the battle of the Wilderness. It is hoped by his many friends that he may undergo the ordeal and be spared to return home, much benefitted.

Monday, Jan. 26, Saylor Kanarr with his fiance, Miss Ethel Weaver, motored to Rock Springs, halting at the Presbyterian parsonage where they were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. The bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W H Weaver, of State College, R. D., and is well qualified to make a sunny home for a good husband which we trust she got. The usual wedding feast greeted their homecoming. They expect to take their first lessons in housekeeping at Altoona, where the bridegroom has employment. Congratulations.

Port Matilda

The snow that came last Thursday measured 12 inches or more. Roads in this section were blocked and it was necessary to use teams and road scrapers from Port Matilda to Half Moon so that the mail could get through.

The Woodring Hotel, recently sold by M. J. Woodring to the C R. and M. J. R. Co., is being remodeled throughout and will have facilities for the accommodation of a number of guests. Heat is being installed in all rooms and baths.

Misses Nancy Wining and Helen Ammerman visited friends and relatives in Bellwood and Huntingdon several days last week. They returned on Friday, but due to the deep snow were unable to get out to the farm and were forced to stay at the Woodring hotel all night. Mr. Wining finally reached town on Saturday morning, after driving through fields part of the way.

The funeral services for Augustus Guyer were held in the Methodist Episcopal church on Thursday. Rev. Walter Williams, of Houtzdale, officiated. About 50 members of the Knights of the Golden Eagle attended. Interment was made in the cemetery about 5 miles east of town on the Buffalo Run Valley road, and was greatly impeded by deep snow.

A number of our people have been accustomed to go to Tyrone on Sunday for a drive, but since the roads have become impassable this diversion has been taken away. However the people are so pleased over the prospect of the new road to be built that no complaints are heard and we are perfectly willing to travel by P. R. R. when necessary.

Boalsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mothersbaugh visited in Altoona from Thursday until Sunday.

Miss Mary Hazel, of Lewisburg, spent several days recently at her home here.

The Civic Club will meet at the home of Mrs. F. M. Charles Friday evening, Feb. 6.

Mrs. J. H. Ross, of Linden Hall, was a recent visitor at the Mothersbaugh home.

Miss Emeline Hess returned to her home here on Tuesday, after taking a business course at Williamsport, and has accepted a position at the First National Bank at State College.

Capt. and Mrs. Philip C. Shoemaker were guests of Col. Boal at dinner on Sunday.

Isaac Gates Dead.

Issac Gates passed away at his home at Tyrone last Sunday morning from diabetes, from which he had been a sufferer for many years. He was a son of Solomon and Lizzie Gates and was born in Gates valley 70 years ago. His earlier years were spent as a tiller of the soil. About 30 years ago he quit farming and went to Tyrone where he was employed as a street car conductor, but was retired several years ago. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and a Mason and was a good citizen in every way. In addition to his wife he is survived by a daughter and 4 sons. Funeral services were held on Tuesday and burial made in the Gatesburg cemetery.

George W. Johnson Dead.

George W. Johnson, a well known farmer and respected citizen, passed away at his home at Millbrook Wednesday evening of last week, after a brief illness from pneumonia. FIRST NATIONAL BANK
BELLEFONTE, PA.
A properly managed bank is not a mere place to keep money. While its chief purpose is to facilitate exchange and to furnish credit, this is but one of the many businesses its affords.
Often the banker has a wealth of business experience, a knowledge of affairs which, when jointed with a sincere desire to help, proves of great value.
It is a good thing, when one is in doubt, to get a new point of view. The banker may be able to furnish this.

Worn Out Since the Grip?

WEAK, nervous—just tired and miserable most of the time? Back lame and achy, too? Rheumatic pains torture you at every step?

Then you should look to your kidneys! Colds and chills are apt to weaken the kidneys and allow toxic poisons to upset blood and nerves. Then may come daily backache, stabbing pains, headaches, dizziness, and irregular or painful passage of the kidney secretions.

Don't risk neglect. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills. Doan's have brought new health to thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Pennsylvania Case

C. E. Follett, prop. of Ellwood Supply Co., 724 Lawrence Ave., Ellwood City, Pa., says: "I believe kidney trouble was caused by a cold settling in my kidneys and the secretions were scanty. My back was weak and the knife-like pains became almost unbearable when I stooped. Mornings I felt stiff and achy. After using Doan's Pills I was cured entirely."

Problem of a Venus

A small boy, the heir of his father who has great possessions, was observed to be regarding, with a puzzled look, the statue of a Venus in the ancestral hall. He was told the story of the goddess, but did not seem impressed, and still look puzzled. "What I want to know," he explained, "is whether she is dressing or undressing."

Plausible Answer

"How is it that while only about one white person in ten thousand reaches the century mark we frequently see negroes one hundred and seventeen years old?"

"Uh-well, sah," replied Uncle Frosty, "as nigh as I kin proselyte de matter, it's due to judicial lyin' on de part o' de cullud race."—Kansas City Star.

Teach your child Internal cleanliness

THE mother who permits constipation in her baby or older child is risking the health, even the life, of her little one.

Fretfulness, feverishness, night terrors, grinding the teeth in sleep, biliousness, coated tongue, loss of appetite, any of these may indicate constipation. Poisons from the child's stagnant intestine are flooding the little body, and if left unchecked may lead to serious consequences.

Avoid Laxatives—Say Doctors

A noted authority says that laxatives do not overcome constipation, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition.

Medical science has found in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and hastens its passage through and out of the body. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Let your infant or child have Nujol regularly, and see rosy cheeks, clear eyes and happiness return once more.

Nujol is used in children's and general hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world.

WORKS FOUR DAYS WITH BROKEN NECK

Forced to Hospital by Pain, Discharged as Cured.

London.—With his neck, head and shoulders incased in plaster of paris, John Harrington, a Southsea gardener, has just been discharged from hospital after three weeks' treatment for a broken neck. And, miraculous to relate, Harrington will recover quite soon, according to the doctors.

Harrington was injured when a piece of masonry fell on his neck, but he continued working four days before pain drove him to the hospital. The doctors found he was suffering from a complete fracture of a section of the spinal column and could not make out how he had lived.

They proceeded to knit the spinal column together again, and did so so successfully that Harrington can now eat, drink and smoke without inconvenience. He expects to start work again in a week or so.

Chauffeur, Blackjacked, Dares Thugs, Saves Car

New York.—Max Locker worked years to acquire the taxicab he drives. With a robber thrusting a pistol against his abdomen and another beating him with a blackjack, he looked them in the eye and announced he would not be robbed. He was not.

About three o'clock, as he was returning to Manhattan, two men stopped him at Forty-first street and Fifth avenue, gave a Brooklyn address and asked him to drive them there.

He protested he had to get back to Manhattan, but both showed him chauffers' badges, and one said: "We're chauffeurs, too, and we've got to get home." He agreed to take them as a favor.

In Thirty-ninth street, near Eighth avenue, one of the men stepped out on the running board, pointed a pistol at him and ordered him to stop and get out. Locker obeyed.

"We want your money and this car," the robber then said.

"Go ahead and shoot, if you're game enough," Locker said. "I'm game, too." As the robber hesitated, his companion drew a blackjack and hit Locker on the head.

"Why are you beating me?" the chauffeur asked. "Is that the way you return a favor?"

Then he began calling for help. The robbers fled.

Locker, after a physician had treated him, remarked:

"I worked all my life to buy this cab, and I wasn't going to give it up without a fight. This fellow's gun didn't mean anything to me. Having a gun didn't prove he had nerve enough to pull the trigger."

Girl Speeder in Court Wins Wager With Mother

Detroit, Mich. — Seventeen-year-old Ethel M. Schuler is wondering whether she won a bet with her mother.

Ethel appeared before Judge Christopher E. Stein and admitted driving her father's automobile at 32 miles an hour.

"You know you are liable for a fine by pleading guilty?" Judge Stein questioned the fair defendant.

"Yes, your honor," she replied. "I came prepared for that contingency."

"How much money have you?" inquired the judge.

"But how much are you going to fine me?" responded Ethel sweetly.

Judge Stein, by questioning her, revealed that Ethel had wagered with her mother that her fine would not exceed "a certain sum." Just what this "certain sum" represented was not disclosed in court, but Ethel's mother had agreed that Ethel could keep everything left after the "certain sum" was paid.

Judge Stein finally compromised with three months' probation and Ethel wonders if she is to keep the "certain sum" in its entirety.

Girl Reared as Chinese Finds She Is White

Billings, Mont.—Miss Evelyn Moy, foster daughter of the Caucasian wife of Dr. Moy Hing, a Chinese resident, and Henry E. Hinkle, white, of Miles City, were married, it was learned the other day.

Earlier efforts to have a minister perform the ceremony were unsuccessful, the latter holding that a Montana law prohibited intermarriage of Chinese and white persons. Mrs. Moy, in an affidavit, declared her foster daughter is the daughter of a wealthy Toronto business man. Until shortly before her marriage Miss Moy believed that she had Chinese blood in her veins.

Samaritan Hurt

Jefferson City, Mo.—Walter Wells of this city will think twice the next time before he becomes the "friend in need." He had been to Lohman on a business mission and on his way back saw a man trying to crank a car. Seeing the man was almost exhausted Wells stopped his truck and offered to help. The man readily accepted the proffer. Wells turned the crank once and a moment later found himself on the ground with his arm broken.

Tenacious of Life

New Ipswich, N. H.—After 14 days at the bottom of a well, a cat, the pet of students at Appleton academy, was rescued by a passerby, who heard its cry. There was no water or food in the well.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

What's the Matter With Kansas Now?

"What's the matter with Kansas?" Such ructions as they are having in the Sunflower State! Chancellor E. H. Lindley of the University of Kansas, at Lawrence, Kans., (portrait herewith) was removed from office by Gov. Jonathan M. Davis and the board of administration following a controversy which arose when the chancellor suspended four university students charged with drinking.

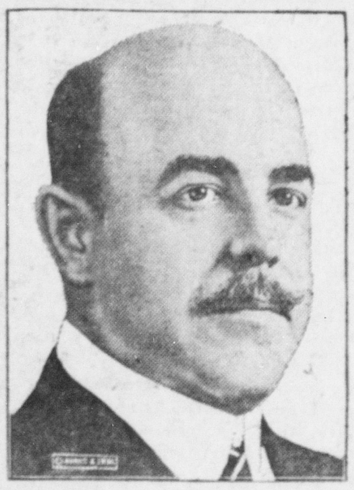
W. L. Burdick, vice chancellor of the university, was ordered to take charge after Lindley refused to relinquish his post at the request of the governor.

Defying this order, Doctor Lindley sought legal aid, and a temporary injunction was granted in District court at Lawrence to restrain the governor and the board from interfering with Doctor Lindley in his duties.

Governor Davis cited Lindley on five counts—insubordination, incompetency, procrastination, political activity, and aloofness from the student body and from patrons of the school.

Then a little later Governor Davis went out of office, a few hours after his arrest on a charge of accepting a $1,250 bribe for a pardon. The new governor, B. S. Paulen, promptly reinstated Lindley.

Longworth Would Oust LaFollette Men



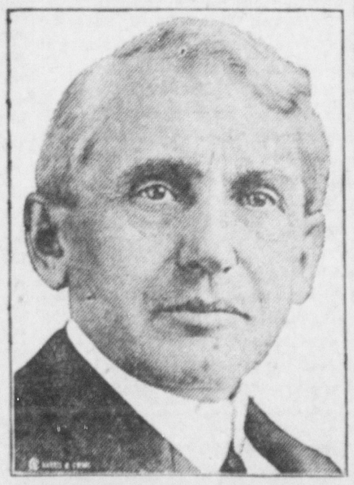
Addressing the thirty-ninth annual dinner of the Ohio Society of New York, Representative Nicholas E. Longworth, Republican leader in the house, predicted that the next congress, with Republicans having a clear cut majority in both houses, would be one of the most efficient legislative bodies in history. He also declared himself in favor of barring from Republican party councils the followers of Senator LaFollette in the recent Presidential campaign—a step already taken by senate Republicans. He says they are no longer Republicans.

"These men," he declared, "cannot and ought not to be classed as Republicans in the next congress. They left the Republican party deliberately, and did everything possible toward its undoing.

"Shall we take them to our bosom and keep them in the inner chambers of our party councils? To do so, in my opinion, would be to deliberately ignore the mandate of the last election, by which the Republican party was commissioned to carry out a definite legislative program and to adhere to certain fundamental governmental principles.

"As I interpret that mandate, it imposes upon us the duty of seeing that the machinery to execute it shall be made as efficient as possible, and surely that could not be done if we were to put in key positions in the next congress men who have opposed and are opposing that program and who have sought and are seeking the destruction of the very foundations upon which, as we hold, our governmental structure is based."

From Farm Boy to Secretary of State



Frank B. Kellogg's career is the story of the rise of an obscure but ambitious Minnesota country lawyer to United States senator, then to the court of St. James as ambassador, and now to the post of secretary of state.

Although Mr. Kellogg is accounted a wealthy man, he has no interests outside his law practice. The fortune which he has was accumulated, his friends say, in his law practice, largely before he won the title of "trust buster" for the Roosevelt administration.

Mr. Kellogg was born in Potsdam, N. Y., December 22, 1856, and when nine years old went with his father to a farm in Olmsted county, Minn., where he worked on the farm and studied by night. He was admitted to the bar in 1877 and began to practice immediately.

His friends prevailed upon him to file for the Republican nomination for United States senator in 1916, which he did, winning the nomination and subsequently the election. He was a candidate for re-election in 1922, but was defeated by Dr. Henrik Shipstead.

He was named by President Coolidge as United States ambassador to Great Britain October 26, 1923, succeeding Col. George Harvey. Mr. Kellogg was married to Clara M. Cook, daughter of George Clinton Cook of Rochester, Minn., June 16, 1886.

Warren Becomes U. S. Attorney General

Charles Beecher Warren of Michigan is the attorney general in the cabinet of President Coolidge. Mr. Warren takes the place of Harlan F. Stone who has been appointed an associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States.

Mr. Warren already has figured prominently in the affairs of the present administration. He was the President's choice for chairman of the resolutions committee at the Republican national convention at Cleveland last summer, and in that capacity drafted the party platform upon which the President based his campaign for re-election.

Mr. Warren has had two diplomatic posts since the Harding administration came into power in 1921. He was first appointed by the late President Harding as ambassador to Japan, and after serving for about two years tendered his resignation.

Mr. Warren and John Barton Payne, a Democrat, were selected as special commissioners to negotiate agreements with Mexico. Their efforts brought about an understanding which made possible the resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico. Mr. Warren then was selected as ambassador to Mexico. He agreed to serve only for a limited period and resigned last fall.

Anemic? Nervous?

Harrisburg, Pa.—"About a year ago when I was in an anemic condition, I was nervous, without appetite and lost flesh. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as a tonic and blood-maker and three bottles restored my appetite, I gained in weight, the nervousness disappeared and my blood was in better condition than it had been for some time. And I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to take."—Mrs. Helen Lenig, 409 Cumberland St. All dealers.

Fort Ringgold An Interesting Post

Important Outpost in Line of Indian Defense.

San Antonio, Texas.—Nestling in the foothills of Starr county, lying snugly against the banks of the somber and treacherous Rio Grande, rubbing shoulders with the quaint and typically Mexican town, Rio Grande City, just midway between Brownsville and Laredo, is located one of the most dignified and stately of army posts—Fort Ringgold, Texas. Chaplain R. W. Rogers, who prepared the history of this post for the United States Army Recruiting News, says that while having enjoyed a varied but quiet career, it nevertheless is considered a very strategic border post. Fort Ringgold was established when the Rio Grande was navigable, boats bringing the first detachment of men to Davis Landing which later was called Ringgold Barracks. In those early days the nearest railroad was at Laredo something more than 100 miles away, while now she boasts a railroad at Sam Fordyce, only 20 miles away.

Camargo, Mex., six miles south of Fort Ringgold, was founded March 5, 1749, by Jose de Escandon. The first survey and map was made for the king of Spain in 1765. It shows a line running north 8,624 varas (33 1-3 inches) from the cross, the central point of operations in Camargo. This line then ran northeast including the Fort Ringgold reservation. With the withdrawal of Texas from Mexico and its admission to the United States, the original title changed over to the state. In the early 40's, H. Clay Davis, a restless young wanderer, drifted to that section of the country and purchased a large tract of land. He soon established a prosperous ranch and settled down to make his fortune.

Capt. J. H. La Motte, First United States infantry, took a small detachment of soldiers up the Rio Grande to Davis Landing, arriving on October 26, 1848. Not until 1853 was the first lease made. A tract 400 yards square, surrounded by a brush fence, containing 33 acres was surveyed. The lease was signed by H. Clay Davis, owner of the land, and W. W. Chatman, representing the United States.

Bandits Cross Border.

Immediately following the annexation of Texas to the United States bandits began to cross from Mexico, killing, looting and burning at will. In repulsing one of these invasions on the battlefields of Palo Alto, an extensive prairie nine miles north of Brownsville, Maj. David Ringgold was killed May 8, 1846. Honoring Major Ringgold, the camp at Davis Landing was called Ringgold Barracks in 1849, and more recently designated as Fort Ringgold.

In September, 1854, the second lease was made, and operated five years. During this period log huts were erected for the use of the troops. Early in 1859 the soldiers were ordered further down the river owing to the Cortina trouble. The old lease having expired during the absence of the troops, another lease was made upon their return. This one was to operate for ten years, granting the owner $600 per year. It further provided, the government had the privilege of buying the land for $23,000. Two years later the Civil war started and the federal troops were taken from the Ringgold barracks. Immediately after the war troops were again sent to that post, arriving in 1867. The property was held by lease until 1878, when it was purchased outright.

In 1906, a brigade post was established at San Antonio. Fort Ringgold with other border posts was dismantled and abandoned. The property was turned over to the Department of the Interior. It was laid off in a town-site and about to be sold when border disturbances again took soldiers to Fort Ringgold. From 1911 to the present soldiers and National Guardsmen have constantly been on watch there. However, no improvement was made until 1917, when the property was again turned back to the War department. In 1918, congress appropriated $250,000 for the improvement of the post and in the following years other appropriations have been sufficient to repair and improve the post until today it is one of the most attractive reservations on the border.

Where Lee Lived.

The most interesting building is the three-room frame cottage on the hill near the signal station. This building was used by Robert E. Lee, when he was in command there as a colonel just before the Civil war. The building is still in a perfect state of preservation.

Many prominent and notable army men have seen service at Fort Ringgold. Two or three years before the Civil war Col. Robert E. Lee and Second Lieutenant Ulysses S. Grant were stationed there at the same time. It was a strange coincidence that two leaders of later opposing forces should have been in the same post at the same time. Other prominent officers who have seen service there are: Jefferson Davis, General McCullough, General Hood, Lieutenant Colonel Sedwitch, General Buell, General Bee, Admiral Semmes, and, more recently, both Generals Pershing and Harbord, who served there as lieutenants. Troops which have been stationed there since the rehabilitation are, besides the National Guard: Third cavalry, Thirteenth cavalry, Twenty-eighth infantry; Second squadron, Thirteenth cavalry and at present the Second squadron of the Twelfth cavalry.

New Chamber Discovered in the Endless Caverns

Newmarket, Va.—A new chamber, surpassing in beauty and natural wonders any hitherto discovered, has been found in the Endless caverns, reports from a party of eminent geologists now engaged in exploring the caverns say. The new chamber was entered by men who wormed their way through a small opening and descended 80 feet on a rope. It is marked by vegetable and animal life and rock formations said to be more spectacular than that of other sections of the caves which have been open for inspection for years.

MAIL CARRIER IS LOST IN FOREST, LEGS ARE FROZEN

Wanders Four Days in Dense Woods Suffering From Cold and Hunger.

Fort William, Ont.—Another epic drama of the Northwest was unfolded as Steve Denoski, a mail carrier, dragged himself into the Twin Falls lumber camp, his legs frozen and nearly dead from exposure and hunger of four days of wandering in a dense forest.

A doctor amputated both legs below the knee, and later shortened one leg at the hip.

May Survive Shock.

Only the man's excellent physique and his astounding fortitude brought him out of the forest alive. He has a slim chance to survive, doctors say.

Denoski, a mail carrier for the New Ontario Construction company, became lost 40 miles east of the Soo lookout.

Become Numb With Cold.

Off the beaten trail he decided to take a short cut instead of retracing his steps as a more experienced woodsman would have done. Owing to the darkness he lost his way and wandered all night, apparently in circles.

All the next day he wandered about, hoping to locate a trail or cabin. Late in the afternoon he lay on a sunny hillside exhausted, and slept a little. Weakened from lack of food he roused himself and kept going.

Tortured by Hunger.

Without means of making a fire he became numb with cold. Occasionally he saw a rabbit which he had no means of killing or capturing. Hunger tortured, he kept on in what seemed to him an interminable tramp.

Striking off in a direction he thought was northward, he hoped to find the Canadian National railway tracks. On and on he went. Too exhausted to walk, he crawled. His legs and feet were frozen then, but with indomitable courage he pulled himself along the snow-covered ground with his hands. Finally he came upon an old logging road and managed to scramble into the Twin Falls Lumber company camp.

Let Tanlac restore your health

IF your body is all fagged-out and run-down, if you are losing weight steadily, lack appetite, have no strength or energy—why not let Tanlac help you back to health and strength?

So many millions have been benefited by the Tanlac treatment, so many thousands have written to testify to that effect that it's sheer folly not to make the test.

Tanlac, you know, is a great natural tonic and builder, a compound, after the famous Tanlac formula, of roots, barks and herbs. It purges the blood stream, revitalizes the digestive organs and enables the sickly body to regain its vanished weight.

You don't need to wait long to get results. Tanlac goes right to the seat of trouble. In a day or so you note a vast difference in your condition. You have more appetite, sleep better at night and the color begins to creep back into your washed-out cheeks.

Don't put off taking Tanlac another precious day. Step into the nearest drug store and get a bottle of this world-famed tonic. That's the first important step back to health and vigor.

Tanlac Restored Her Health

"Typhoid fever reduced me to 95 lbs. and left me weak as a rag. Failing to get relief from other sources I tried Tanlac and after 6 bottles had gained 20 lbs. Now I enjoy a fine appetite and feel like a new woman. As a nurse I give Tanlac to all my patients."

Keep Photos of Famous British

2,000 Likenesses of Great Gathered for Posterity.

London.—The National Portrait gallery is compiling photographs of distinguished men and women in all fields of British life.

Already 2,000 of the great and near-great have posed for this national collection.

Very few of the faces in the collection are feminine.

It is an exceptional person, man or woman, who becomes distinguished before the age of forty. Some of the beauty of women often fades before then, so that the trustees of the National Portrait gallery have not been greatly surprised when, in several instances, after inviting a distinguished woman to have her picture made for their collection, the lady visited a photographer, but refused to approve of the result.

Photographs of more than 150 of the distinguished contemporaries, as the trustees of the gallery call those whom they invite to sit for their collection, have recently been placed on public exhibition. Most of the faces are old, but some of them, notably John Drinkwater's, the dramatist, are on the sunny side of middle age.

Only one man in the collection wears a monacle—Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary.

There are grizzled old shipbuilding magnates, authors, artists, musicians, doctors of medicine and surgeons, railroad officials. There is the rugged, smiling countenance of T. P. O'Connor, father of the house of commons; Winston Churchill, with his floodgates collar and studiously careless bow tie; the archbishop of Canterbury, with a shaggy, drooping brow almost hiding one of his eyes; the lord chancellor with long wig and close-clipped mustache; Mr. Asquith and scores of other somebodies and almost somebodies.

One of these days, it is hoped, the national gallery will set aside a room in which to hang photographic enlargements of prominent people; after their death, of course. No canvas can now be hung in the gallery until the subject has been dead ten years or more.

Sometimes when a deceased man of prominence is honored by selection for the gallery, no adequate photograph from which to make a painting can be found. Under the new system of compiling photographs of all distinguished people, this will never happen again.

The compilation was begun in 1915; it will probably go on forever.

250,000 Men Received Summer Army Training

Washington.—More than 250,000 men received some degree of intensive military training under War department supervision last summer. The period of training ranged from fifteen days to three months. The bulk of the training was in the National Guard camps.

The reports show that in the twenty-nine civilian training camps held this year the attendance was the maximum which could be admitted and cared for with funds available to the War department for the purpose. The number actually at the camps, 33,983, for thirty days, was a big increase over last year, while the number of applications received amounted to 53,000.

Of that number, 44,000 proved to have the physical and other qualifications necessary for admission, so that approximately 10,000 youngsters were disappointed in their hope to go through a training camp course last summer.

A phase of the organized reserve corps work during the summer to which the War department attaches particular importance is the application for the first time of the principle of unit training to these organizations.

The Defense day test, on the face of official reports from all over the country, served to bring out sharply the benefit of this unit training scheme, War department officials say.

Hand-Painted Shoes Fad French Riviera Resort

Cannes, France.—Women's shoes in mah-jongg pyrogravure and hand-painted designs are becoming quite popular here and at Monte Carlo and Nice at the beginning of what promises to be a most brilliant season on the Riviera. Examples of hand-painted footwear worn at the casinos include mauve satin models ornamented with designs in gold and gray, and gray satin shoes with hand-painted roses on both the vamp and the quarter.

St. Paul Office Has Wild Caller

This hawk made an early morning call at a St. Paul (Minn.) office, remained only long enough to have his picture snapped over the stenographer's desk and then departed through the open window.

'Ware Uncle Sam

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Mail boxes are expensive playthings, John Regier, who knocked over one of them, found out when he came to the reckoning in Federal court here. He was fined $500 by Judge R. L. Williams, and told that rough stuff didn't go with mail boxes.

"As boys, all of us did worse things," said Judge Williams, "but we never ran up against Uncle Sam."

Whips Gunman

Chicago.—Hugo Tetman, proprietor of a restaurant at 755 North Clark street, defeated a gunman in a wrestling match, took the pistol away and fired it at the robber as he fled.

Airedale Blocks Escape of $3,500,000 Robbers

Kansas City, Kans.—An airedale pup prevented the escape from the Wyandotte county jail here of Fred E. Poffenberger and Keith Collins, principals in the $3,500,000 Council Bluffs (Iowa) mail robbery in 1920.

When the dog caused Sheriff Maher to start an investigation he found the prisoners had burrowed almost through the 14-inch brick wall which separated their second-floor cell from the jail yard. A slight push would have eliminated the outer bricks and liberated the men, the sheriff said.

In the cell, Maher found an iron bar and several sharp pieces of iron, which had been used to penetrate the wall. Two gas pipes, wrapped with a padding of silk thread, also were found.

Maher said he investigated when the dog kept barking constantly at the wall outside the cell.

New Fish Story

Arnolds Park, Iowa.—Harry Tenant and Guy Rickman, both of this place, caught an eight-pound goldfish while seining "soft" fish from Minnewashta lake, recently. This fish was of the carp variety and was of a bright orange hue, with a few small black spots near the head—an exaggerated replica of the little goldfish many people keep as ornaments in small glass bowls. The last time such a fish was found in these lakes, according to Mr. Rickman, was 15 years or more ago.

No Encouragement

Magistrate (severely) — Prisoner, how did you have the audacity to break into this man's house at midnight and rob him?

Prisoner (indignantly)—But, your worship, last time I was before you, you wanted to know how I could have the audacity to rob a man on the highway at noon. When can I go on with my work?"—From the Bailie.

SPECIAL COURT

Three Moonshiners from Clarence Given $500 Fine and 6 Months.

At a special session of Court last Thursday, Judge Arthur C. Dale sentenced several liquor violators.

Three persons arraigned before him were: Sophis Pohalla, John Safco and Mary Planco, all of Clarence. They were taken in a raid by State Police last week, in an effort to clean out the moonshiners in the Clarence and Snow Shoe districts. Upwards of 75 gallons of whiskey, 10, barrels of mash, several stills and a quantity of beer, was found in the homes of the 3 persons. They pleaded guilty. John Safco, an aged foreigner, denied the charge of selling, and the officers admitted they had no evidence. Mrs. Planco pleaded for clemency on the ground that she had 10 children and a husband to support, the latter having been seriously injured in a mine accident. All of the violators received like sentences, however, the Court imposing upon each $500 fine, costs of prosecution, and 6 months in the county jail.

William Johnson, colored, of Philipsburg, pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle without a license. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs.

Frank H. Thomas, of State College, pleaded guilty to desertion and non-support. He was ordered to pay $40 per month for the support of his 2 children.

Hendershot—Sommers.

A very quiet wedding was performed by Rev. E. E. McKelvey at the Methodist parsonage on Monday afternoon, when he united in marriage David McClure Hendershot and Miss Laura Sommers, both of Bellefonte. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sommers, of Wingate. The newly-weds will reside in Bellefonte.

COUNCIL NOTES

Routine Business Disposed of at Monday Night Meeting.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of Borough Council on Monday night was devoid of any unusual happenings, the Boro. "dads" confining themselves principally to routine matters.

Louis Hill lodged a complaint about a $40 water rent bill for his building on East Bishop St. After checking the matter up, it was found that an overcharge of several dollars had been made and the matter was rectified.

A written invitation to the members of Council to attend the annual banquet of the Logan Hose Co. at their quarters on Feb. 12 was read.

A written request from Miss Minnie Fenster, who holds a Boro. note for $1,000, due annually, to change same to one of 6 months duration, was received. Referred to the Finance Committee with power to effect the necessary change.

Notice was received from the State Borough Association at Harrisburg, that the annual convention of the organization would be held at that place on Feb. 10 and 11. The notification also embodied the usual invitation to the regularly elected delegates in addition to the burgess and solicitor to attend. Councilmen William Emerick and Harry Flack were appointed delegates.

The question as to whether or not vacant dwellings should be exempt from water tax was brought up, and it was decided that something was due the borough for fire protection. It was finally decided to cut the taxes on vacant dwellings one-half.

The Street Committee made their routine report on work done in removing snow, etc.

The Water Committee brought up the matter, previously discussed, of raising the rental on the Phoenix mill building occupied by the G. F. Musser Co. Referred to the Water Committee, with directions to confer with the Boro. solicitor and learn just when the present lease on the property expires.

The Finance Committee made their usual report of notes due and payable.

The Fire and Police Committee reported that the matter of a new "stop" panel for the beacon light at the intersection of High and Water Sts. had been taken up with the manufacturers, but that no reply had been received.

The proposed theatre and amusement tax ordinance was up for first reading.

No progress was reported in the matter of the proposed raise in rates by the Keystone Power Corporation for current furnished for street lights.

GAME PRESERVE PLANS

Rush Twp. Lands Purchased by State Called Game Refuge No. 33

"The Republican's" exclusive announcement last week that the State will establish a game preserve in Rush Township, and has paid $23,460 12 for 8,690 acres of mountain land there for that purpose, was officially confirmed by the State Game Commission, in a formal statement issued at Harrisburg on Monday. About 2,500 acres out of the heart of the 8 690 acres will be enclosed, where hunting will not be permitted. The remainder will be open to hunters. Outlining the boundaries of the 8,690 acre tract, the statement says:

"This tract of land is on the headwaters of Cold Stream, a tributary of the Moshannon, and is particularly well watered. The tract purchased extends along the Allegheny Mountain ridge between Bald Eagle valley and the Moshannon between two State highways crossing the Allegheny Mountain, one from Philipsburg to Port Matilda, the other from Osceola Mills to Tyrone. There is a good growth of trees and suitable shrubbery for game and bird food."

End of World on Friday.

There are probably very few, if any, Centre Countians who have any notion that the end of the world is scheduled for tomorrow, Feb 6. Out in Hollywood, California, however, religious followers of one Mrs. Howard W. Rowan, a self-styled leader in "Reformed" Adventist circles, are reported to be calmly awaiting the end of everything earthly on that day and date. Mrs. Rowan has prophesied that the world quits, closes up shop, and passes out of existence on Friday, and so far as her followers are concerned that ends it. They really believe it will be so. "No preparations are being made, nor are any religious services planned," said Mrs. B. E. Fullmer, delegated to speak for the prophetess, Mrs. Rowan. "Mrs. Rowan has given her message, and we have faith her vision will be fulfilled," she declared. Friday will tell the tale.

Annual Athletic Banquet.

The annual banquet to the Bellefonte Academy athletes, who closed an unusually successful season of football, will be held this (Thursday) evening at the Brockerhoff House. Among the speakers will be Rev. C. H. Romig, of State College; Coach Riden, B. H. S.; Tom Davies, former Pitt Star and All-American back; N. E. Robb and Rev. Father Downes. On Friday evening, Feb. 13, the annual football dance will be held. Music by Chalis Bucknellis. The Academy minstrels are slated for May 21—22 this year, and will undoubtedly be funnier and more hilarious than ever.

B. H. S. BASKETBALL

Two Defeats Injure Chance for Local Boys to Win Pennant.

(Contributed)

B. H. S. basketball team experienced a disastrous week end trip to Philipsburg and Houtzdale. Their chances for the pennant in the Mountain League were considerably dimmed, but not entirely erased. A clean sweep of the next five games will put B. H. S. near the top.

At Philipsburg we were shaded in a game that was anybody's until the final whistle blew. The score see sawed back and forth and stood 12—11 when it was over. Five minutes before the end B. H. S. was leading, but two field goals by Philipsburg reversed the lead. Only four fouls were called during the entire game, three of these being on Philipsburg. Contrary to certain local reports the game was not rough, nor were the officials unfair.

Saturday night Houtzdale trimmed the local lads to the tune of 28 16 We say that Houtzdale beat B. H. S., but the concensus of opinion is that B H. S. defeated itself by individual playing and lack of get-together spirit. No team can expect to win when there is crabbing among the players and when the earnest endeavors of two or three of the players are annulled by the personal grievances and childish antics of a couple of others. Team-work and co operation in purpose and spirit are necessary to success in any sport. A greatly changed team will face Philipsburg in the return game here on this Friday night.

Friday night at Renovo the girls experienced their first set-back in over a year. A goal from the field in the last few seconds gave Renovo the lead and game, 21—20.

Renovo plays the B. H. S. girls at the local Y. M. C. A. on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

REBUKED GRAND JURY

Judge Arird Recommended Dumping Jury List in River.

Judge Arird, of Warren County, while presiding specially in Clinton County Court last week, became so indignant because the Grand Jury ignored so many bills of indictment, that he exclaimed:-

"I hope that none of you have forgotten your oath or disregarded it. I have held court in eight or nine different places in our state, but in all those courts I have never seen so many bills ignored as you, the Grand Jury of this court, have ignored.

"Judge Baird is sick at the time and he is a very good lawyer and a very good Judge and I believe when he hears of the report of this grand jury that he will empty the jury wheel of this court into the river and be present when the wheel is refilled.

"I hope that there will never be such a thing like this happen in the courts of Clinton County again.

"You are discharged."

Secretary Aplin Resigns.

At a recent meetidg of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. it was decided to make a change in the office of the General Secretary of the Association. This change was made necessary on account of sufficient working capital not being available for its support at this time. S. S. Aplin, who has been Secretary for the past 3 years, retired on Jan 31. The Board of Directors have not definitely decided upon his successor.

Gun Fight at Osceola.

Fred Waitman and Thomas Dillard, colored residents of Osceola Mills, are in the Philipsburg State Hospital as a result of a pistol battle at the former place on Saturday night. One was wounded in the arm and the other in the leg.

Wants His Money's Worth

A famous clothes designer, now in Los Angeles, has given up this prize secret for the benefit of the world: "Men are very seldom stingy with their wives on this one point: they are liberal in the matter of clothes, but with this proviso: A man will nearly always dig up $500 for his wife's clothes if she looks like $500 when she gets them on. What husbands object to is paying $500 for clothes in which a woman looks like $250."

Oriental Rugs

"Oriental rug" is a general term applied to rugs made in the Orient—Chinese, Bokhara, Caucasian, Turkish, Persian and Indian. Most of these rugs have a velvet pile, but Kelims are woven flat, nearly alike on both sides, while Cashmeres have a flat surface with a weave peculiar to themselves.
